Towns open festival season in central Maine

In Windsor

The parade for the 2010 Windsor Days took place on July 10, with many entries watched by a large crowd along the parade route. Clockwise, from top left: Here comes the parade! The Windsor Historical Society's float entry in the parade with Alice Chicoine standing; Fire and rescue vehicles from Windsor and surrounding towns, with Windsor Fire Chief Arthur Strout in the lead vehicle.

In Winslow
